

Egg

I'm just a tiny round ball. I get all my food from inside this ball. You might be able to see my black eyes!

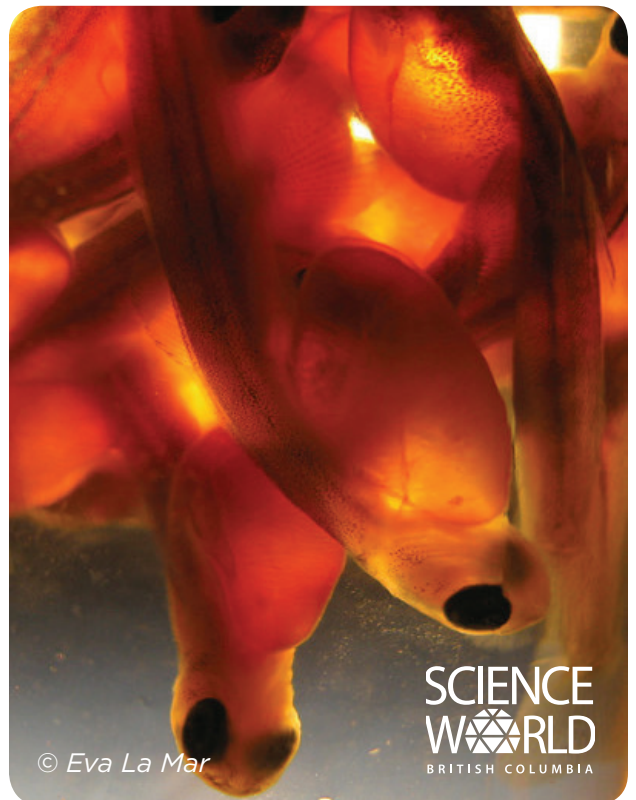

SCIENCE
WORLD
BRITISH COLUMBIA

Alevin

I'm starting to look like a fish, except I have a big egg sac that I carry around for food.

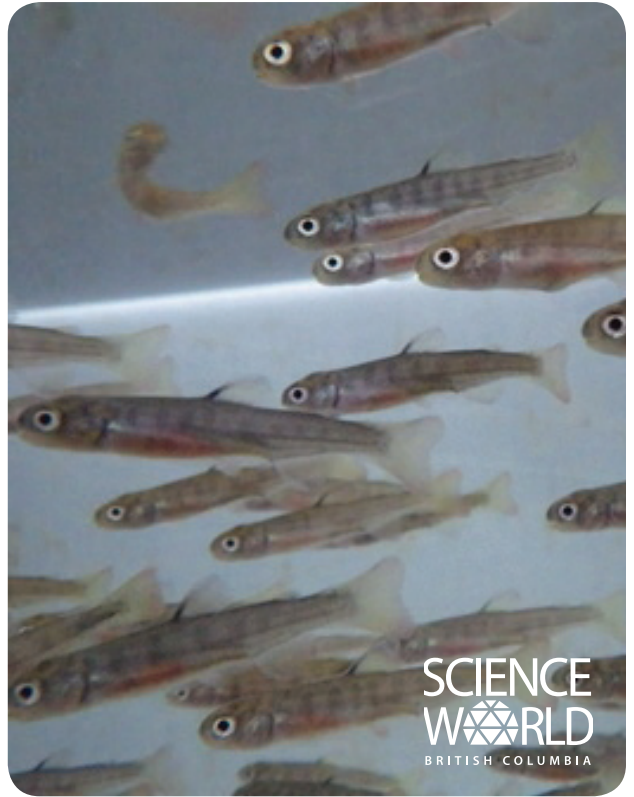

SCIENCE
WORLD
BRITISH COLUMBIA

Fry

I'm a baby fish. Look for my parr marks (vertical stripes) on my side. Now, I have to find my own food, because I've eaten my entire egg sac!

SCIENCE
WORLD
BRITISH COLUMBIA

SCIENCE
WORLD
BRITISH COLUMBIA

Smolt

I'm still a little fish, but my body is changing a lot to deal with the journey from freshwater rivers to the saltwater ocean. I've lost my vertical stripes called parr marks.

SCIENCE
WORLD
BRITISH COLUMBIA

© 2007 Richard James
coastodian.org

SCIENCE
WORLD
BRITISH COLUMBIA

Adult

I've been living in the ocean for years and have grown really big from all the great food available. I don't have any fancy colours. I am just silver, because I'm not trying to impress anyone yet.

SCIENCE
WORLD
BRITISH COLUMBIA

SCIENCE
WORLD
BRITISH COLUMBIA

Spawner

I'm on my way back home to find a mate, in the same stream that I was born. I've changed a lot, in order to move from saltwater to freshwater and to attract a mate. I've even stopped eating! Notice my colours and my hooked mouth.

SCIENCE
WORLD
BRITISH COLUMBIA

SCIENCE
WORLD
BRITISH COLUMBIA